MARKET REVIEW

Jakarta Composite Index (JCI) decreased by -2.70% in October. Global market indices also decreased amid Fed's narrative saying that it would maintain higher interest rates for an extended period. This led to a sharp increase in longer term US Treasury yield, which led a higher IndoGB yield and soften the Rupiah which decreased by -2.65% to 15,897/USD. To mitigate further depreciation, Bank Indonesia (BI) delivered a surprise hike of its policy rate by 25bps to 6.00% after leaving it unchanged for eight consecutive months. Infrastructure and Health Care were the top performing sectors last month while Transportation and Technology were the laggard.
